RIVAL OLAIMANTS.

Members of Peary's expedition say they met Cook at Eish and he said nothing of having discovered the Pols. Professor McMillan says he saw Harry Professor McMillan says he saw Harry Whitney, Cook's friend, and he raid nothing of Cook's discovery. William Pritchard, cabin boy on Peary's ship who was left at Annatok, saye Cook told him of his trip to the Pole and cautioned him not to tell Peary. Peary in his letter of April 28th last to Professor McMillan, said his nothern trip was estifactory, but he did not say directly that he had but he did not say directly that he had found the Pole.

According to the well known salron-omer, Signor Francesco Faccia da Schio, of Bergamo, Italy, the moon absolutely disprove Commander Peary's claim to having discovered the Pole. In his dispatch to the New York Time the ex-plorer states that on April 6, having accomplished the six stages he had planned he was favored with an opening in the clouds, which permitted him to take astronomical observations. From these he established his position as lat tude 89° 57'. Signor Faccia points out bowever, that unquestionably accurate astronomical calculations show that with the horizon at 89° 57' the moon could not be seen at the time indicated by Commander Peary, because from midday April 5, Paris time, or 6 o'clock central standard time, the declination of the moon became negative—that is to say, the moon was below the equator, which is the horizon of the Pole. the horizon at 89° 57' the moon could

Professor Zappa, vice-principal of the university of Rome, confirms the statement that the moon was not visible at ment that the moon was not visible at the Pole on April 6, being at least 1° under the horizon, even taking into ac-count the possibility of refraction and only excepting in a cass of strange atmospheric phenomens, which, again, would have readered any determination of latitude quite illusory and whose nature could scarely have been taken by a polar explorer during several hours on

BURNING OF GASOLINE BOAT. Theodore England, ja, aged 18 years, son of the pastor of the local German Lutheran church, at Mount Clemons, ARLINGTON INSTITUTE Luthersn church, at Mount Clemons, Mich., was drowned, Ray De Kay and Ray Grossbeck were badly burned about the hands and 22 seniors of the M unt Olements High School, many of them girls, had a narrow escape from death when the 44 foot gasoline launch Saratogs, on which the party was returning from a picnic at Tashmoo Park burned

> Cliaton river. An explosion of gasoline caused the fire and a panic ensued. Young England jumped overboard in 10 feet of water. De Kay and Grossbeck, owners of the launch, fought frantically to prevent some of the boys and girls from ollowing their companion overboard to almost certain death. They managed to keep all hands aboard until the blazing craft drifted onto a bar in the bot-

to the water's edge in the mouth of the of the river in four feet of water When the craft grounded they fought the panic stricken ones back from the rail, while they fastened a life preserver about each of the girls and dropped them overboard into the shallow water. Then the boys were each provided with a preserver, and De Kay and Grossbeck, after having done all in their power, left the boat.

The excursion steamer Palos, two milesaway, sighted the flames and crowded on all speed to the rescue.

The survivors were nearly exhausted from their experiences and the cold water when taken on board.

STATE WIDE PROBIBITION. Dr. James Cannon, president of the Auti-saloon League, in the following statement, issued Saturday night, outlined the policy of the lesgue on the question of state-wide prohibition, as the result of the declaration of the Rev. John A. Taylor, of Roanoke, to Republican Sate Chairman Stemp, that petitions from every precinct in the state would be submitted to the legislature asking that the question of state-last winter stands until the next con-vention in January, 1910," said Dr. Cancon. "But that declaration clearly and unmistakably states that the aboli-R.
